SELLERS' COUGH SYRUP.

IT IS PROMPT IN ITS ACTION, ALWAYS safe, and may be given to the smallest child or most delicate female with confidence in its success. It contains no inflammatory or irritating ingredients, but is a most valuable and reliable remedy for all the various affections of the Throat, Lungs, and Bronchial Tubes, whether arising from cold, or any other cause. It is especially applicable to children, affording great relief in Whooping Cough and kindred diseases. From a large number of certificates received from year to year, we present the following:

From the Rev. J. C. Church, Alexandria, Ohio.
"I have used your Cough Syrup, Feb. 24, 1865. In January, 1864, I had a severe cough, proceeding from a cold, so that I could not sleep more than two or three hours at a time. I took your Cough Syrup, and in a few days I was completely cured. I have since used it several times, and it has always given me the same relief. I can truly say that it is the best remedy I have ever used for a cough." J. C. Church.

From the Rev. J. C. Church, Alexandria, Ohio.
"I took the syrup again in the morning, and it gave me the same relief. I have since used it several times, and it has always given me the same relief. I can truly say that it is the best remedy I have ever used for a cough." J. C. Church.

THE New York Times is showing how ready the country is for war in one article, and rebuking the Post for urging on war with France on account of Mexico. In another, upon the former editorial, it is said that though we "shall have, during the next fiscal year, but about 50,000 men of all arms in the national army, and our military expenses will be only some $3,814,000, yet the Secretary of War is confident that we are in fact prepared, whether for an other rebellion or for foreign war."

The chief demands of war being, first, troops, then arms, ammunition, clothing, transportation, and subsistence supplies, it is held that the abundance of all these. According to the Secretary, "the speed of the railroad and telegraph will determine the time required to raise an army in the United States," while for arms and ammunition, every soldier honorably discharged was allowed to take home his arms at a nominal price, and as Mr. Stanton says, "it is not likely to gather on the campaigns of 1864 and 1865." Besides these,

"The Government retains in the arsenals 'more than a million of the best quality of arms and equipments. The stock of all these is now in the National deposits." "We are not only called a nation of soldiers, but while the Italian kingdom, which has one of the most impoverished populations in Europe, keeps up a standing army of 400,000 men, the United States will have but 50,000, though with an organization capable of containing 82,000 men. The following statistics will be read with interest:

"During the war we equipped, armed, fed and moved (often for thousands of miles) more than two millions of men, furnished them with 25,000,000 barrels of shot, 78,000,000 pounds of powder, 200,000 tons of straw, 500,000 cords of wood, and 6,000,000 tons of coal; we supplied in a single year 11,000,000 horses and 58,815 mules; have furnished rations and clothing in immense quantities of which no exact account can be given. All the gigantic machinery moved on as smoothly and easily as the supply of a single million regiment in its summer camp."

A score or so of amendments to the Constitution of the United States have already been proposed, and new ones are produced daily in Congress. Among the latest and most important are: that of Representative Boutwell, of Mass., that no State shall make any distinction in the franchise on account of race or color; that of Representative Jencks, of Rhode Island, providing for a direct vote of the people for President and Vice President; and making all men who can read voters for President, and members of Congress; and that of Mr.

Stevens, of Nevada, declaring the Union indissoluble and forbidding the

The Southern Whites and the Nation.

"Dixon," writing from Georgia to the Boston Advertiser, thus gives his estimation of the kind of loyalty to the national government, which prevails in that State:

"The people accept the repudiation of the rebel war debt quite as cheerfully, considering the doubtful prophecies of the generation of the late rebellion. So many of the delegates there so earnestly assured me that their constituents would be exceedingly anxious to pay that obnoxious rebel debt, that I was half led into believing that the President had imposed a hard condition upon Georgia. Happily, I was doubtful, and didn't waste much sympathy, for I find that it was all a grand hoax. The people of Georgia had bought the bonds at ten to twenty cents on the dollar were anxious the State should hold the money. I have seen value, but strange as it may seem,

I haven't found a single man, except those peculiarly interested, who first fault because of the repudiation."

The feeling toward Northern men is very far from being liberal or kindly.

Many of them are, however, already sent, coming in here; they are tolerated, but not welcomed. Having once fought against them, they have now great resistance to the government. They are not, however, as a rule, to be trusted and capital would be safe but for the presence of the military. I know that the army on hand is more than careful to make it with a full consequence of the worst feature of the political situation is the secondary character of the authority of the general government is everywhere practically asserted.

"Our doubts as to the result of the superiority of numbers and resources of the Union, as Ex-Governor Johnson, gravely, and with the most serious assertion, says, 'I have had to report from all sections, that the Union is the stronger, and now thunderingly echoed in the later elections, is that
